Repairs begin this morning at I-20 Savannah River Bridge

What:

A tractor-trailer tipped over early this morning on Interstate 20, damaging the westbound side of the Savannah River Bridge. The Georgia Department of Transportation has a crew mobilized for railing repairs this morning. This area around mile 200 will shrink down to one lane during the corrective process, which could take up to three days weather permitting.

There are currently no changes to the contracted slab repair work scheduled on the eastbound side of I-20 in the same vicinity. The public should expect delays and slow down when traveling near the South Carolina line this week.

When: Tuesday, Feb. 9 through possibly Thursday, Feb. 11 until the location is fixed

Where: I-20 bridge westbound around mile post 200 over the Savannah River; Be cautious in this single-lane work zone.

Please see attached photo showing the extent of the damaged sustained to the I-20 bridge.
